Weddings Walker-McDarment.

A pretty wedding of wide interes very quietly solemnized on Mon evening, when Miss Mary Sue Walker became the bride of Liust. Corley P. McDarment, of Kelley Field, officiating.

For the occasion the bride wore

For the occasion the bride wore a handsome spring suit of chaudron suede cloth with a suede hat in the same shade, hand-embroidered in green metal, with a corsage bouquet of Sweetheart roses and valley lilles.

The ceremony was followed by an informal reception for only relatives and a very few intimate friends in the home of the bride's aunt. Mrs. J. T. Walker, 1125 Peabody avenue.

The rooms were prettily decorated with spring flowers and a basket of lovely spring bioesoms adorned the table in the dining room, where a delicious wedding menu was served.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mrs. P. G. Walker, of Lonoke, Ark., has a host of friends in this city, where she has spent much of her time in the home of her aunt.

Lieut and Mrs. McDarment left following the reception for Kelley field, where they will be at home to their friends.

At the luncheon referred to Mrs. Miles Foindexter apparently stood first on the list, with Mrs. Harding of Ohio, and Mrs. Howard Sutherland of West Virginia, in the also mentioned class of Republican possibilities.

On the Democratic side, Mrs. Marshall, wife of the vice-president, and Mrs. Alice Pomerene, of Ohio, represented the possibilities of their party.

Mrs. Marshall, as all the world knows by now, would be a model hostess in the White House, just as she has been in second place for the past seven years.

in second place for the past seven years.

Mrs. William Glbbs McAdoo, who has just concluded a ten days' visit to the White House, is in the same class sartorially speaking, as Mrs. Lowden, whose great wealth makes it possible to have everything from Parls, without regard to price. Mrs. McAdoo wears Paris rowns on occasions, but following the custom she established in buying her trousseau, selects these creations in person from a New York importer, without limiting herself to any particular establishment. During her recent visit she wore a dark velvet afternoon gown showing the straight line skirt wider at the hem than most skirts of the moment, with high smart back drapery and long sleeves.

As she took no part in general society, her dinner gowns were of the simplest satin of her favorite dark bine, with train and loose half-length sleeves and square decolletage serving for the family dinner with or without guests. Mrs. Poindexter has always been noted for her severity in dress, as for her simplicity of manner, both being typical of the genuine good breeding, good sense and good taste of this kindly but fearless daughter of the far West, who never loses her sense of proportion and would be as much at home in the White House as she is in the family residence on N street, or her home town of Snokane.

Mrs. Poindexter makes her calls, goes to church or to luncheon in a well cut, well tailored coat suit of black cloth, with medium-sized black beaver hat turned up at one side, with a single quill, supplemented by a stole and muff of natural otter.

ON ANNIVERSARY OF TREATY
The meeting of the Alliance Francaise will be held on Friday afternoon, provided the ban against public gatherings has been lifted.
Friday, Feb. 6, is the anniversary of the date of the first treaty between France and the United States in 1778, and a special program in keeping with that occasion has been arranged. To pour tea in a friend's drawing room or welcome guests in her own, she usually wears a demi-tollet of sik and chiffon in some neutral tones always in style, but never extreme. Her dinner gowns (the Poindexters are much in demand as dinner guests) are usually black and made with a train. A velvet on very plain lines and a net-incrusted in jet being two model gowns that point the way in this practical woman's practical wardrobe. A meeting of the Parent-Teacher as-ociation will be held at the Messick chool on Wednesday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock.

The Rev. F. H. Cumming, D.D., has been invited to address the members at 3 o'clock on "The Relation Existing Between Teacher and Parent."

The president of the association urges a large attendance Mrs. Pomerene, who is tall, fair, graceful and fond of color, wears a very becoming dinner gown of gold colored tulle, mounted on cloth of gold with self-colored embroidery in silk appearing on the tulle drapery.

Mrs. Champ Chrik, should she find herself in the White House, would no doubt follow the example of Mrs. Taft, who was the best dressed First Lady Washington has ever known, simply because she made every purchase, from a parasol to a fur coat, with direct reference to her position and the various occasions on which her very extensive wardrobe was to be used. Mrs. Clark, as wife of the speaker, always dressed with taste and dignity. Mrs. William Jennings Bryan, on her recent short visit, showed the same preference for manyes and grays which distinguished her style of dress when her husband was secretary of state. Mrs. Bryan is distinctly an individualist in dress, who seeks no aid from Dame Fashion to turn back time in its flight, and consequently looks more than her actual are, while most of her contemporaries look less than theirs.
